Stratford Third Graders Skype with Favorite Author

On January 20th, Stratford third graders were treated to a Skype session with Canadian author and zoologist Jess Keating. Keating wrote “Pink is for Blobfish,” a favorite with the group. Keating answered several questions about the book, including why she used the color pink in the title. She explained that pink-is-for-girls stereotyping did play a role in the title – she wanted girls, and boys, to know that girls can love things, even yucky things, like blobfish. Keating also gave the group a sneak peak of her new book (literally holding up the book), and answered many other student questions during the interaction. Thank you, Jess Keating, for sharing your love of reading and writing with Stratford students!
